What makes 'The Wedding Filming Company' so special and very different to any other professional wedding company?

Apart from all the very different options we have introduced over the years and are still doing even after 26 years, it is also worth noting we are constantly upgrading in our technical capabilities in the form of new editing suites, incorporating the latest software and using high end cameras to capture the day in beautifully clear Digital quality, all that we consider should be standard to any professional wedding filming company.

What we do that is different, is get to know the clients from the first contact to the final edit. We try to find out as much about the two of you as possible, so when you watch the production back it truly is a natural faithful record of your day as you remembered it with all the bits you experienced on the day and so, so much more you never witnessed. You only do this once, so get a record that truly represents you both. We are always hearing clients who did not book us or used a cheaper option like a friend filming and always regretted it. Book a free, no obligation consultation now and find out why we are without doubt the best.

Finally if that wasn't enough, we are passionate about archiving history your history for future generations.

New in 2006 High Definition or HD as it is known.

At present we are producing client films on high definition for those who choose to upgrade and see the future. This will give a much superior picture and sound over DVD quality, DVD being around 550 lines resolution and VHS 270 lines and HD coming in at 1080i x 1920 pixels the quality is simply stunning. We are the first to film, edit and produce High definition films in the south west back in 2006, some companies may say they are shooting in high def' but some of these are consumer cameras and are not true 1080i high definition, make sure your wedding day is being correctly archived for future generations.

A client asked:- Why are we producing high def' films already when we haven't got any means to play it on yet?

Well for the last 26 years have always tried to be a step ahead of current thinking what is next we always ask ourselves, High Def' is what will be happening just like when DVD took over from VHS, would you go back now? NO!

We are at present, for those who choose, are shooting on HD then editing on HD storing a HD master of your day, then we go back to the edit again and produce a DVD for you to have ready for the time you get back from honeymoon, which means in the future you will come back to us and ask us for an HD version of your day, when you have a HD DVD player and TV, you pay the transfer costs and that's it. Maybe several years after your wedding day you are able to have a current format in true HD because you had the foresight to have it filmed that way back when you got married.

How much will this cost us?

This option is available now and the additional initial cost to any package of your choice is £100. For more information on this option please call 01934 822455 The Wedding Filming Company
